RHABDO: Rhabdomyolysis is the breakdown of muscle fibers resulting in the release of muscle fiber contents (myoglobin) into the bloodstream. Some of these are harmful to the kidney and frequently result in kidney damage.

Symptoms include: Abnormal urine color (dark, red, or tea or cola colored), general weakness, muscle stiffness or aching (myalgia), severe muscle tenderness and/or muscle swelling, weakness of the affected muscles.

Risk factors include: Alcoholism (with subsequent muscle tremors), crush injuries, heat intolerance, heatstroke, ischemia or necrosis of the muscles (as may occur with arterial occlusion, deep venous thrombosis, or other conditions), low phosphate levels, seizures, severe exertion such as marathon running or calisthenics, shaking chills, trauma, use or overdose of drugs, especially cocaine, amphetamines, statins, heroin, or PCP (Statins are cholesterol reducing medications like Levacor, Zocor, Pravachol, Lipitor, Crestor, and more.)

Prevention: Scale your workouts accordingly. Do not push yourself beyond your limits in the beginning. For your first 30 days (10 – 12 workouts), scale back intensity levels and don't push beyond your limits. Drink plenty of fluids after strenuous exercise to dilute the urine and flush the myoglobin out of the kidney. Proper hydration is also necessary after any condition or event that may involve damage to skeletal muscle. Continue hydrating daily! At least half your body weight in ounces of water per day.

Treatment: Early and aggressive fluids (hydration) may prevent complications by rapidly removing myoglobin out of the kidneys. Fluids may need to be given by I.V. The fluid needs with muscle necrosis may equal the massive fluid volume needs of a severely burned patient. Medicines that may be prescribed include diuretics and bicarbonate (if urine output is sufficient). Hyperkalemia should be treated if present. Kidney failure should be treated as appropriate.

I am confirming that I have fully read and understand the above on Rhabdomyolysis (a.k.a Rhabdo), and the risk associated with Rhabdomyolysis and doing CrossFit activities. By participating in any type of Frisco CrossFit workout or event, I am releasing Frisco CrossFit, LLC, Frisco Barbell Club, Frisco Strength and Conditioning, it's owners, it's employees and trainers of any and all liability, and I fully assume the risk of Rhabdomyolysis associated with CrossFit activities.
